

The Bahá'í Fund

INTRODUCTION: Approaching the threshold...

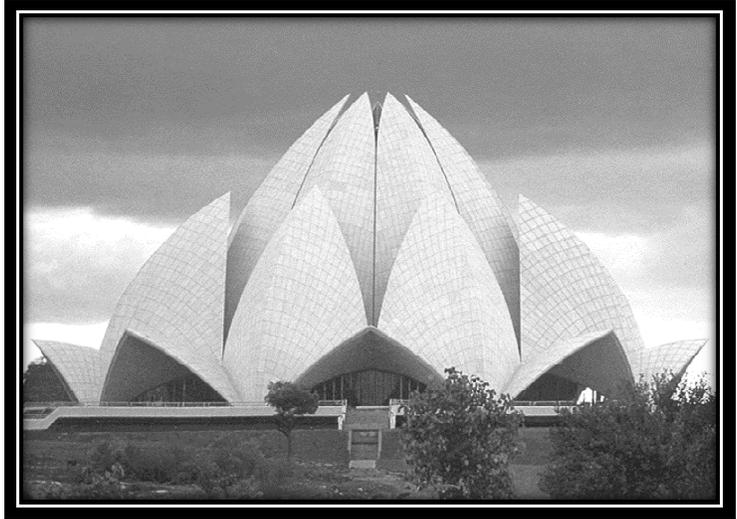

The Bahá'í Faith operates on funds donated by Bahá'ís only. Giving regularly to the Bahá'í Fund is a voluntary act, however, it is identified in the Sacred Writings as a necessity for the individual's spiritual growth, as well as the development of the Cause. One can give to the local Fund by giving to the Treasurer of the Local Spiritual Assembly or group. A Bahá'í can also earmark his or her local contribution, or donate it directly to the National Bahá'í Fund, the Continental Bahá'í Fund, the International Bahá'í Fund, or other permanent or short-term Bahá'í funds.

The Local Bahá'í Fund is used to fund all local Bahá'í activities.

The National Bahá'í Fund is used to fund all National Bahá'í objectives: publishing, centers, schools, administration, teaching, proclamation, training and others.

The Continental Bahá'í Fund provides for the propagation and protection work of the Continental Boards of Counsellors and their Auxiliary Boards.

The International Bahá'í Fund enables the House of Justice to aid the Bahá'í work in fruitful but impoverished areas, to assist new National Assemblies to start their work, to contribute to major international undertakings, to finance the operation of the Bahá'í World Centre, to maintain the sacred properties in the Holy Land, to conduct the pilgrimage program, and to defend and proclaim the Faith.

OBJECTIVE: A look to the horizon...

Facilitator

Review the following objectives with the participants:

The objective of this study is to understand the fundamental verities or basic truths regarding the importance and responsibility of contributing to the Fund.

THE STUDY PROCESS: Attaining the water of life...

Facilitator

Review the following study process with the participants. Then study the numbered quotations on the following pages, one at a time as described below.

1. READING: A drink from the cup of guidance...

Have two participants take turns reading the quotation out loud so that it is read twice.

2. CONFIRMING MEANING: A spray from the fountain of light...

A. If anyone would like to have better understanding of a word used in the quotation, now is the time to look up its substitute phrase, definition or synonym, which can be found in the boxes below each quotation. Read the substitute phrase, definition or synonym out loud so everyone can hear.

B. Read the sentence again that contains the word you looked up, while substituting for that word, its given phrase, definition or synonym from the box below the quotation.

C. If anyone would like a better understanding of another word, repeat the process above until everyone is satisfied with their understanding of the words.

3. FINDING VALUE: Mining the gems of truth...

Take turns stating each basic fact or truth you can find in the quotation about the importance and responsibility of contributing to the Fund.

QUOTATIONS: Within the meadows of Thy nearness...

1. Contributing to the Fund is a service that every believer can render, be he poor or wealthy; for this is a spiritual responsibility in which the amount given is not important. It is the degree of the sacrifice of the giver, the love with which he makes his gift, and the unity of all the friends in this service which bring spiritual confirmations.

(The Universal House of Justice, cited in Wellspring of Guidance: Messages 1963-1968, p. 19)

amount: sum total
contributing: giving or providing jointly with others confirmations: validations and assurances that cause spiritual strength degree: extent or measure
friends: fellow Bahá'ís
Fund: accumulation of donated resources specified for Bahá'í purposes
poor: less than adequate in means or possessions render: perform

responsibility: act to which one is morally accountable
sacrifice: giving up something of value for something of greater value
service: beneficial deed
spiritual: higher, divine, or heavenly oriented unity: spiritual condition of harmony, agreement, peace and accord in human relations, free of conflict, dissension, contention and strife
wealthy: abundant in means and possessions

2. It is the sacred obligation of every conscientious and faithful servant of Bahá'u'lláh, who desires to see His Cause advance, to contribute freely and generously for the increase of that Fund.

(Shoghi Effendi, Bahá'í Administration: Selected Messages 1922-1932, pp. 41-42)

advance: grow and progress Cause: eternal religious Faith; today, the Bahá'í Faith conscientious: one whose behavior is governed by what one knows is right contribute: give or provide jointly with others [to the Fund] faithful: loyal and devoted freely: without restraint, reserve, or restrictions

Fund: accumulation of donated resources specified for Bahá'í purposes
generously: give liberally and abundantly
obligation: moral duty and responsibility sacred: holy, highly valued, and spiritually important servant: believer who performs service under obligation

3. ...contributions to the Faith are the surest way of lifting once and for all time the burden of hunger and misery from mankind, for it is only through the system of Bahá'u'lláh — Divine in origin — that the world can be gotten on its feet and want, fear, hunger, war, etc., be eliminated. Non-Bahá'ís cannot contribute to our work or do it for us; so really our first obligation is to support our own teaching work, as this will lead to the healing of the nations.

(Written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi, cited in Lights of Guidance: A Bahá'í Reference File, p. 122, #413)

burden: hard to bear oppression contribute: give or provide jointly contributions: funds given or provided jointly with others Divine: God inspired; holy; sacred eliminated: removed and gotten rid of healing: well-being lead: guide the results
misery: great suffering, pain, sorrow, and distress
obligation: moral duty and responsibility

origin: the source of its beginning support: serve to carry on surest: most certain system: administrative order teaching: imparting knowledge that causes others to learn [the Bahá'í Faith] [kind of] want: the state of need
work: [teaching and administrative] efforts and activities

4. The friends must understand that whilst no Assembly or individual may force the friends to give to the Faith, such giving has been considered in our Teachings as a spiritual obligation and an act of sacrifice, which is closely related to the spiritual development of the individual believer.

(The Universal House of Justice, cited in Lights of Guidance: A Bahá'í Reference File, p. 262, #876)

Assembly: Bahá'í Administrative Body development: gradual improvement, advancement, or growth force: exert physical, intellectual, or moral power [to cause] related: connected by something shared

sacrifice: giving up something of value for something of greater value
spiritual obligation: higher or divine moral duty
Teachings: specific beliefs, concepts, perceptions, principles, standards, morals, ideals and truths taught [in the Bahá'í Faith]

5. ...the progress and promotion of the Cause of God depend on material means.

(Bahá'u'lláh, cited in The Compilation of Compilations, Prepared by the Universal House of Justice, 1963-1990, Vol. I, p. 489, #1099)

Cause of God: purpose and plans of the Bahá'í Faith depend: rely for support material: physical or tangible

means: resources or available wealth progress: advancement and improvement
promotion: the furtherance and expansion

6. ...the acceptance of the offerings dependeth on the spirit of joy, fellowship and contentment that the righteous souls who fulfil this injunction will manifest. If such is the attitude acceptance is permissible, and not otherwise. Verily thy Lord is the All-Sufficing, the All-Praised.

(Bahá'u'lláh, cited in The Compilation of Compilations, Prepared by the Universal House of Justice, 1963-1990, Vol. I, p. 490, #1102)

acceptance: willingness to favorably receive
All-Praised: sole One completely glorified and extolled
All-Sufficing: sole One completely competent or capable to meet or satisfy needs attitude: mental and emotional state contentment: the state or quality of being happy enough with what one has or is dependeth: is based or conditioned fellowship: companionship, friendly association, and mutual sharing fulfil: put into effect

injunction: directive to join in joy: pleasure and delight
manifest: clearly show
offerings: presentation of a gift or contribution as an act of worship otherwise: if conditions are different than that expressed permissible: formally consented; allowable righteous: morally right, fair, and just spirit: disposition, outlook, or attitude verily: in very truth

5. Sometimes people who are not Bahá'ís give money or other resources to the Bahá'í Faith. They are informed that if they insist on giving to the Bahá'í Faith, those funds will be donated to a charitable organization in their name. This is because _____
6. Shoghi Effendi wrote that we should “ever bear in mind the cardinal principle that all contributions to the Fund are to be purely and strictly voluntary in character,”¹ and that “no pressure should be used upon the friends.”² Therefore, “compulsion,” “coercion,” “psychological pressure,” “solicitation” and “mob psychology” should not be used to inspire Bahá'ís to give to the Fund.
- true
 - false
 - only if the Funds are in the red
7. Giving regularly to the Faith is considered
- a. a spiritual obligation.

A letter from a friend you know...

Dear Friends,
From time immemorial, I have served Bahá'u'lláh's servants throughout the world. I have supported the work at the World Centre of Bahá'u'lláh's Faith. I have helped maintain the work of other Bahá'í institutions throughout the world, the Hands of the Cause, the Continental Boards of Counsellors, the National Spiritual Assemblies, the Auxiliary Board members, the Local Spiritual Assemblies and their assistants.

I have built Bahá'í schools, Temples and Centres, and have supported full-time Bahá'í teachers and Bahá'í teaching projects. I have sent Bahá'í travelling teachers to the east of the earth and to the west thereof. I have sponsored great Bahá'í local, national and international conferences and conventions. It is I who take care of the Bahá'í representative at the United Nations and those representatives at other non-governmental organizations. From the beginning, I have been labouring night and day.

Friends, I have withstood the test of many generations. I have given to millions longing for the meaning and essence of their existence. I have welcomed millions of men and women from all walks of life seeking rest from their labours of search and uncertainty, seeking peace and security, and a reason for living.... Friends, for me to continue to serve you well, you must nourish me always so that I may be healthy to serve you always. Friends, I need you just as you need me.

Your friend, The Bahá'í Fund
