

The Will and Burial

INTRODUCTION: Approaching the threshold...

A discussion of wills and burials is not something many people look forward to, especially in societies where thinking about or discussing death is customarily avoided. For Bahá'ís, the preparation of a will, with instructions for burial, is a spiritual obligation with spiritual influences. "The execution of the provisions of the will," wrote Shoghi Effendi in one example, "causes the spirit of the deceased to rejoice in the `Abhá Kingdom."¹

So much family conflict can be avoided if people make clear where and how their possessions are to be disbursed, and where and how their burial is to take place. The central objective for Bahá'ís is to always effect an environment of unity. Preparing one's will, and making provisions for one's burial, makes for the best possible outcome of unity for family and friends who must remain.

While most states in the United States permit a person to prepare his own will, it is often advisable to seek the assistance of an attorney. Writing and executing the will to conform to the law helps ensure that the person's wishes are carried out after death. A pamphlet, The Writing of a Will, giving instructions about will preparation, is available from the Treasurer's Office at the Bahá'í National Center.

Often a will is neither read nor even located until after the burial. It is therefore, preferable to keep an additional copy of the burial instructions separate from the will and in an easily accessible location. Family members or friends should know where the instructions are kept, and a copy should be given to a Local Spiritual Assembly. Even in cases where there are burial instructions they are usually not legally binding.

"All Praise to Him Who, by the Shield of His Covenant, hath guarded the Temple of His Cause."

OBJECTIVE: A look to the horizon...

Facilitator

Review the following objective with the participants:

The objective of this study is to understand the fundamental verities or basic truths regarding Bahá'í wills and burials.

THE STUDY PROCESS: Attaining the water of life...

Facilitator

Review the following study process with the participants. Then study the numbered quotations on the following pages, one at a time as described below.

- 1. READING: A drink from the cup of guidance...
Have two participants take turns reading the quotation out loud so that it is read twice.
- 2. CONFIRMING MEANING: A spray from the fountain of light...
 - A. If anyone would like to have better understanding of a word used in the quotation, now is the time to look up its substitute phrase, definition or synonym, which can be found in the boxes below each quotation. Read the substitute phrase, definition or synonym out loud so everyone can hear.
 - B. Read the sentence again that contains the word you looked up, while substituting for that word, its given phrase, definition or synonym from the box below the quotation.
 - C. If anyone would like a better understanding of another word, repeat the process above until everyone is satisfied with their understanding of the words.
- 3. FINDING VALUE: Mining the gems of truth...
Take turns stating each basic fact or truth you can find in the quotation about Bahá'í wills or burials.

QUOTATIONS: Within the meadows of Thy nearness...

1. Unto everyone hath been enjoined the writing of a will. The testator should head this document with the adornment of the Most Great Name, bear witness therein unto the oneness of God in the Dayspring of His Revelation, and make mention, as he may wish, of that which is praiseworthy, so that it may be a testimony for him in the kingdoms of Revelation and Creation and a treasure with his Lord, the Supreme Protector, the Faithful.

(Bahá'u'lláh, The Kitáb-i-Aqdas, p. 59)

adornment: enhancement in splendor and attractiveness by adding the beauty bear witness: serve as evidence and proof
Creation: this world
Dayspring: Manifestation [in this day Bahá'u'lláh] enjoined: commanded or ordered kingdoms: realms or dominions belonging to God
Most Great Name: There are several forms of the Most Great Name, all of which are derivatives of the name "Bahá", such as "Abhá", as well as certain phrases such as "Alláh-u-Abhá", ☞

"Yá Bahá'u'lláh", or "Yá Bahá'u'l-Abhá".
praiseworthy: deserving of honor or praise Revelation: the next world testator: person who dies leaving a will testimony: solemn declaration or affirmation of faith treasure: abundance of that which has great value
will: legal declaration of a person's wishes regarding the disposal of his or her body, property, and estate after death

2. In this connection, it should be noted that the question of the will is of extreme importance: everyone should devote the most serious attention to drawing up a will, so that there should be no one who doth not have a will. This is one of the binding laws of this mighty Dispensation. We ask God to bestow a blessing upon your affairs so that they may prosper abundantly.

(`Abdu'l-Bahá, cited in Ocean Research Library, from a letter written on behalf of The Universal House of Justice, dated 1 July 1996, p. 3)

bestow: give the gift of binding: required; obligatory blessing: special divine favor devote: set aside and dedicate Dispensation: religious System regulating ☞ human affairs under divine authority

will: legal declaration of a person's wishes regarding the disposal of his or her body, property, and estate after death

3. According to the Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, the making of a will is essentially an obligation of the individual Bahá'í. Each believer is free to dispose of his estate in whatever manner he chooses, within the limits imposed by civil law and after payment of burial expenses and other debts and obligations. There are several ways a believer can leave instructions regarding his burial; there is no objection for such instructions to be included in the will, if the law permits, and the believer so wishes.

(Universal House of Justice, cited in Lights of Guidance: A Bahá'í Reference File, p. 192, #631)

civil law: city, state, or federal law dispose of: transfer to the control of another estate: possessions and assets left by a person at death imposed by: established or applied by authority [of] limits: determining features or bounds obligation: moral duty and responsibility obligations: One of the spiritual obligations for a Bahá'í is The Right of God, or Huqúqu'lláh. This may be paid during one's lifetime, or through one's will (see p. 149, #6)

will: legal declaration of a person's wishes regarding the disposal of his or her body, property, and estate after death

4. The friends should be strongly advised to make wills specifying that they want their funerals to be conducted under the auspices of the Bahá'í Faith or at least in conformity with its requirements and they should make this known both to the Local Spiritual Assembly and to their own relatives, while they are still alive. In this way it is quite possible that agreements may be reached with non-Bahá'í relatives before death takes place.

(The Universal House of Justice, cited in Lights of Guidance: A Bahá'í Reference File, pp. 192-93, #633)

at least: in any case auspices: support and guidance conducted: directed and carried out conformity: accordance or agreement funerals: rites used in the ceremony and burial of their body Local Spiritual Assembly: administrative ☞ body of the local Bahá'í community requirements: condition demanded as necessary and appropriate specifying: naming or stating exactly and clearly wills: legal declaration of a person's wishes regarding the disposal of his or her body, property, and estate after death

5. The execution of the provisions of the will causes the spirit of the deceased to rejoice in the `Abhá Kingdom.

(Written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi, cited in Developing Distinctive Bahá'í Communities, p. 18.14)

`Abhá Kingdom: most glorious spiritual World where souls pass on to after death deceased: person who has died execution: doing what is provided or required provisions: conditions; advanced stipulations rejoice: feel joy and great delight

6. For the burial of the dead the only requirements now binding in the West are to bury the body (not to cremate it), not to carry it more than a distance of one hour's journey from the place of death, and to say the Prayer for the Dead if the deceased is a believer over the age of 15.

(Messages from the Universal House of Justice, 1963-1986: The Third Epoch of the Formative Age, p. 279, #147.18)

binding: put under obligation carry: move by transporting cremate: reduce the body to ashes by burning journey: travel by any means of transport (KA, p. 111), "which may be calculated from the city limits to the place of burial." (KA, p. 230) Prayer for the Dead: Published in Prayers and Meditations of Bahá'u'lláh, pp. 260-261, No. CLXVII. It is the only Bahá'í obligatory prayer which is to be recited in congregation; it is to be recited by one believer while all present stand in silence. (Notes of The Kitáb-i-Aqdas, pp. ↗ 172-73)

requirements: condition demanded as necessary and appropriate
West: "...many of the laws of the Kitáb-i-Aqdas were applied in Iran and the neighbouring lands of the Middle East from the very early days.... While the "east" continued to designate Iran, Iraq and other countries of the older Bahá'í communities of the Middle East, the term "west" came to include the rest of the world." (ETA, dated 31 March 2005)

7. In brief, the Bahá'í law for the burial of the dead states that it is forbidden to carry the body for more than one hour's journey from the place of death; that the body should be wrapped in a shroud of silk or cotton, and on its finger should be placed a ring bearing the inscription "I came forth from God, and return unto Him, detached from all save Him, holding fast to His Name, the Merciful, the Compassionate"; and that the coffin should be of crystal, stone or hard fine wood. A specific Prayer for the Dead ... is ordained, to be said before interment. As affirmed by `Abdu'l-Bahá and the Guardian, this law precludes cremation of the dead. The formal prayer and the ring are meant to be used for those who have attained the age of maturity, i.e., 15 years of age....

(Cited in Notes of The Kitáb-i-Aqdas, p. 229)

affirmed: declared as a fact carry: move by transporting cremation: reducing the body to ashes by burning forbidden: not permitted or allowed; prohibited interment: depositing the dead body in the earth or in a tomb journey: travel by any means of transport (KA, ↗

p. 111), "which may be calculated from the city limits to the place of burial." (KA, p. 230)
law: rule of conduct established and enforced by authority ordained: established and enacted precludes: prevents consequently shroud: cloth

8. There is nothing in the Teachings against leaving our bodies to medical science. ... The spirit has no more connection with the body after it departs, but as the body was once the temple of the spirit, we Bahá'ís are taught that it must be treated with respect.

(Written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi, cited in Directives from the Guardian, p. 47)

connection: relationship, bond, or tie medical science: research, education, organ banks etc.
respect: high and special regard or consideration spirit: immortal essence of one's rational, spiritual, and emotional self temple: place reflecting the divine presence

SHARING: A breath from the spirit of inspiration...

Facilitator

Ask the participants to complete the statements below. When everyone has finished, have each person share, in a round, the one thing that was most outstanding or inspiring and how it made him or her feel. Please remind everyone not to remark on the comments of others.

The one thing from the quotations that was the most outstanding or inspiring to me was _____

SOME QUESTIONS: A gentle breeze from the testing winds...

Facilitator

Ask the participants to answer the following questions. They can usually find answers in the quotations just studied or in the introduction. When everyone has finished, review the questions, then share and discuss the answers.

1. A Bahá'í can make provisions in his will for all his possessions to be
 - a. taken with him.
 - b. given to members of his family only.
 - c. given to any one or any institutions he chooses.
 - d. cremated.
2. According to the Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, the individual has a duty to write a will and testament, and is free to dispose of his estate in whatever manner he chooses, after his
 - a. debts are paid.
 - b. obligations to Huqúqu'lláh are met.
 - c. funeral expenses are paid.
 - d. estate is allocated as described in the Kitáb-i-Aqdas for cases where there is no will.
3. Believers in the West (see definition of "West" in quotation #6) can have all the requirements of Bahá'í burial laws met if they choose, but they are obligated to meet only three at this time. All the requirements of the laws are listed below. Which three are required for Western believers?
 - a. "The position of the body in the grave should be with the feet pointing toward the Qiblih, which is Bahjí, near `Akká, Israel."¹
 - b. To say the congregational Prayer for the Dead before internment.
 - c. To be buried, not cremated.
 - d. Not to carry the body for burial more than one hour's journey from the place of death.
 - e. To carefully wash and then wrap the body in a shroud of cotton or silk, preferably silk.

From the Writings of 'Abdu'l-Bahá...

As for the question of inheritance which is occasioning perplexity: in truth, one is entirely free during his lifetime to make provision in his will for the division and distribution of his property amongst his heirs in whatsoever manner he seeth fit, in order that his wishes may then be implemented after he hath passed away. The writing of a will is obligatory upon everyone; everyone, that is, must in his lifetime draw up a will that is firm, sound, and clear in its provisions; seal and hide it; and guard it in a very safe place. In drawing up his will the testator enjoyeth full discretion to dispose of his property as he seeth fit; his will is a binding instrument, having precedence over any other provision, and no one hath the power to either modify or change it. Under these conditions, should he bequeath his whole property to his children, he is but acting within his rights. In the event, however, of disobedience to this command, of failure to draw up a will, and of non-fulfilment of the divine obligation; likewise in the event of disappearance of the will itself, the testator's property will be divided up according to the designated shares. [see The Kitáb-i-Aqdas, pp. 26-28]

In truth, the wisdom of this perspicuous and most mighty ordinance is that no one should draw breath without a will. Observe how, in the absence of a will, the inheritance in its entirety is divided up, distributed and dispersed contrary to the wishes of the deceased; what difficulties and disagreements are thus engendered! The will, however, is the settler of every dispute, and the cause of ease for all, for in it the testator disposeth of his property in whatsoever manner he desireth. How agreeable it is for the estate in its entirety to be disposed of in accordance with the testator's will and pleasure! Observe ye how many people during their lifetime are fearful about what will happen when they pass away. Now, with this divine commandment—the obligation and religious duty of drawing up a will before one's passing—all these difficulties are resolved.
