

The Will and Burial

INTRODUCTION: Approaching the threshold...

A discussion of wills and burials is not something many people look forward to, especially in societies where thinking about or discussing death is customarily avoided. For Bahá'ís, preparing a will with burial instructions is a spiritual obligation with spiritual influence. “The execution of the provisions of the will,” wrote Shoghi Effendi in one example, “causes the spirit of the deceased to rejoice in the `Abhá Kingdom.”¹

So much family conflict can be avoided if people make clear where and how their possessions are to be disbursed, and where and how their burial is to take place. The central objective for Bahá'ís is always to effect an environment of unity. Preparing one's will and making provisions for one's burial ensure the best possible outcome: unity among family and friends who must remain.

While most states in the United States permit a person to prepare his own will, it is often advisable to seek the assistance of an attorney. Writing and executing the will to conform to the law helps ensure that the person's wishes are carried out after death. A pamphlet, The Writing of a Will, giving instructions about will preparation, is available from the Treasurer's Office at the Bahá'í National Center.

Often, a will is neither read nor even located until after the burial. It is, therefore, preferable to keep an additional copy of the burial instructions separate from the will and in an easily accessible location. Family members or friends should know where the instructions are kept, and a copy should be given to a Local Spiritual Assembly. Even in cases where there are burial instructions, they are usually not legally binding.

“All Praise to Him Who, by the Shield of His Covenant, hath guarded the Temple of His Cause.”²

OBJECTIVE: A look to the horizon...

Facilitator

Review the following objective with the participants:

The objective of this study is to understand the fundamental verities or basic truths regarding Bahá'í wills and burials.

THE STUDY PROCESS: Attaining the water of life...

Facilitator

Review the following study process with the participants. Then study the numbered quotations that follow, one at a time as described below.

1. READING: A drink from the cup of guidance...
 - A. Read the quotation out loud in its entirety.
2. CONFIRMING MEANING: A spray from the fountain of light...

To better understand certain words used in the quotation, take turns with the following:

 - A. Each participant choose a word from the quotation and state it for the whole group to hear. (Like a fun game – pick a word!) Then...
 - B. Read out loud the sentence that contains the word you selected, while substituting for that word, its given phrase, definition, or synonym from the boxes below the quotation.
 - C. Repeat A and B above until everyone is satisfied with their understanding of the words.
3. FINDING VALUE: Mining the gems of truth...
 - A. Read the quotation out loud again in its entirety.
 - B. Take turns stating each basic fact or truth you can find in the quotation about Bahá'í wills or burials.

QUOTATIONS: Within the meadows of Thy nearness...

1. Unto everyone hath been enjoined the writing of a will. The testator should head this document with the adornment of the Most Great Name, bear witness therein unto the oneness of God in the Dayspring of His Revelation, and make mention, as he may wish, of that which is praiseworthy, so that it may be a testimony for him in the kingdoms of Revelation and Creation and a treasure with his Lord, the Supreme Protector, the Faithful.

—Bahá'u'lláh

The Kitáb-i-Aqdas: The Most Holy Book, (Haifa: Bahá'í World Centre, 1992), par. 109, p. 59.

adornment: enhancement in splendor and attractiveness by adding beauty bear witness: give as evidence and proof
Creation: this world
Dayspring of His Revelation: Manifestation [in this day Bahá'u'lláh] enjoined: charged with the responsibility [of] head: write as the heading or title [of] kingdoms: realms or dominions belonging to God
Most Great Name: There are several forms of the Most Great Name, all of which are derivatives of the name “Bahá,” such as “Abhá,” as well as certain phrases such as “Alláh-u-Abhá,” ☞

“Yá Bahá'u'lláh,” or “Yá Bahá'u'l-Abhá.”
oneness: quality, state, or fact of the singleness and indivisibility praiseworthy: deserving of honor or praise Revelation: the next world testator: person who dies leaving a will testimony: solemn declaration or affirmation of faith treasure: abundance of that which has great value
will: legal declaration of a person's wishes regarding the disposal of their body, property, and estate after death

2. According to the Teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, the making of a will is essentially an obligation of the individual Bahá'í. Each believer is free to dispose of his estate in whatever manner he chooses, within the limits imposed by civil law and after payment of burial expenses and other debts and obligations. There are several ways a believer can leave instructions regarding his burial; there is no objection for such instructions to be included in the will, if the law permits, and the believer so wishes.

will: legal declaration of a person's wishes regarding the disposal of their body, property, and estate after death

3. The friends should be strongly advised to make wills specifying that they want their funerals to be conducted under the auspices of the Bahá'í Faith or at least in conformity with its requirements and they should make this known both to the Local Spiritual Assembly and to their own relatives, while they are still alive. In this way it is quite possible that agreements may be reached with non-Bahá'í relatives before death takes place.

requirements: conditions demanded as necessary and appropriate West: “...many of the laws of the Kitáb-i-Aqdas were applied in Iran and the neighbouring lands of the Middle East from the very early days.... While the “east” continued to designate Iran, Iraq and other countries of the older Bahá’í communities of the Middle East, the term “west” came to include the rest of the world.”—written from the secretariat of the Universal House of Justice in an email to the author dated 31 March 2005.

6. In brief, the Bahá’í law for the burial of the dead states that it is forbidden to carry the body for more than one hour’s journey from the place of death; that the body should be wrapped in a shroud of silk or cotton, and on its finger should be placed a ring bearing the inscription “I came forth from God, and return unto Him, detached from all save Him, holding fast to His Name, the Merciful, the Compassionate”; and that the coffin should be of crystal, stone or hard fine wood. A specific Prayer for the Dead ... is ordained, to be said before interment. As affirmed by ‘Abdu’l-Bahá and the Guardian, this law precludes cremation of the dead. The formal prayer and the ring are meant to be used for those who have attained the age of maturity, i.e., 15 years of age....

CLOSING MEDITATION: A heart song...

From the writings of `Abdu'l-Bahá.

As for the question of inheritance which is occasioning perplexity: in truth, one is entirely free during his lifetime to make provision in his will for the division and distribution of his property amongst his heirs in whatsoever manner he seeth fit, in order that his wishes may then be implemented after he hath passed away. The writing of a will is obligatory upon everyone; everyone, that is, must in his lifetime draw up a will that is firm, sound, and clear in its provisions; seal and hide it; and guard it in a very safe place. In drawing up his will the testator enjoyeth full discretion to dispose of his property as he seeth fit; his will is a binding instrument, having precedence over any other provision, and no one hath the power to either modify or change it. Under these conditions, should he bequeath his whole property to his children, he is but acting within his rights. In the event, however, of disobedience to this command, of failure to draw up a will, and of non-fulfilment of the divine obligation; likewise in the event of disappearance of the will itself, the testator's property will be divided up according to the designated shares. [see The Kitáb-i-Aqdas, The Most Holy Book, pp. 26-28]

In truth, the wisdom of this perspicuous and most mighty ordinance is that no one should draw breath without a will. Observe how, in the absence of a will, the inheritance in its entirety is divided up, distributed and dispersed contrary to the wishes of the deceased; what difficulties and disagreements are thus engendered! The will, however, is the settler of every dispute, and the cause of ease for all, for in it the testator disposeth of his property in whatsoever manner he desireth. How agreeable it is for the estate in its entirety to be disposed of in accordance with the testator's will and pleasure! Observe ye how many people during their lifetime are fearful about what will happen when they pass away. Now, with this divine commandment—the obligation and religious duty of drawing up a will before one's passing—all these difficulties are resolved. —`Abdu'l-Bahá
